This hidden gem in the heart of the Leicestershire countryside is an idyllic escape from hectic everyday life. Tucked away in the rafters above Kilworth Springs Golf Club, The Attic is a very special restaurant that boasts stunning panoramas of the adjacent golf course and picturesque farmland, coupled with an imaginative and beautifully executed menu of modern European dishes.

My starter of crab rarebit was perfectly balanced in flavour, with the different elements complementing each other beautifully. The accompanying homemade Béchamel sauce in particular stood up well next to the flavour of the fish. My partner started with Parmesan and chorizo arancini – an unusual starter that we both thoroughly enjoyed. We continued with mains of roast rump of lamb and venison loin that were both satisfyingly rich and wholesome. For dessert, I plumped for the delicious Black Forest chocolate pavé while my partner savoured the rose water panna cotta. Both puddings were beautifully presented, and demonstrated the chef's talent for matching flavours.

In the summer months, The Attic is transformed from a snug hideaway into a breezy sun-filled sanctuary, with its wide rooftop terrace ideal for romantic aperitifs or informal al fresco dining. If you're looking for a rural rendezvous that combines great food with knowledgeable staff, a cosy, relaxed atmosphere and a truly unique location, The Attic should be at the top of your list.
